

Trained Service Animals

Allegiant welcomes passengers traveling with a trained service animal(s). A service animal is specifically trained to assist individuals in mitigating one or more disabilities by performing a specific task(s).

Ensuring the safety of all passengers, crew, airport personnel, and animals traveling on Allegiant is and always will be Allegiant's top priority. To that end, we ask that all passengers traveling with trained service animals have their licensed veterinarian complete the following form.

- Allegiant transports domestic dogs, cats and miniature horses
- Passengers may travel with up to three (3) trained service animals
- Service animals may only occupy the passengers purchased space in accordance to FAA safety regulations. The animal may lay under the seat or travel on the passengers lap if the animal is less than a lap child (approximately 30 lbs.).
  - If the animal(s) exceeds the disabled passenger's foot space, the animal will be denied for transport.
- Present fully completed Veterinarian Health Form to an Allegiant representative at least 45 minutes prior to scheduled departure.
